Visual Artist and Historic Drama Presentation

Teaching privately for fifteen years and maintaining a portrait/commission art work business led Martha Burgin into the artist-in-residency realm. She has developed programs in all media areas having taught both private lessons and in public school settings since 1990. Her private art students, both children and adults, have won numerous awards in local competitions. She teaches after-school programs, summer camps, and summer drawing/sculpting classes.

Martha also has developed curriculum for music and drama programs, using the inspiration of a local historical figure.

Discussing a school's direction for the students is of primary concern to Martha. Martha gladly adjusts her format to suit any grade level.

Martha's own personal work covers painting in various media, pencil drawing, and sculpture. She has exhibited both jointly and in one woman shows in North Carolina over the last ten years. She is associate artists with Personal Touch Portraits.
